

The Right Way to Care for Baby

PLENTY of sleep, regular hours for feeding, and lots of fresh air! These are the things every baby needs. And in doing all you can to help your baby build a healthful body, you will want to consider most carefully the fresh-air item. The right carriage is important.

Some of the things you will want in a carriage for your baby will be an adjustable hood, a roomy carriage body, durable upholstery that will not easily soil, light, flexible springs, and rubber-tired wheels that sit solidly on the axles. And these are all features of the Heywood-Wakefield carriage. It is the carriage for the out-of-door baby. We have on exhibition some very attractive new models of these handsome baby carriages which we would like to show you.

See our big window display.

WILLIAMSTOWN

Morris F. Wiggin, 12, Died Saturday Afternoon of the Measles.

The funeral of Morris F. Wiggin, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Wiggin, who died Saturday afternoon at 4:14, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home, Rev. John Ions officiating. Burial was in the family lot in the Williamstown cemetery. The boy had been sick for two weeks with measles, which developed into pneumonia, and the baby of the family, Laura, is very ill at the present time with measles and bronchial pneumonia. Two brothers, Eldon and Bernard, have had the disease and are recovering. The remaining family is made up of the parents, the two sons and daughter above named.

It is reported that a secret organization will try to stampede the town election for license. All who are interested in no-license should be out and vote accordingly. A No-license Advocate, Williamstown grange, No. 81, will hold its regular meeting Wednesday evening, March 7. A good attendance is desired, as South Barre grange expects to furnish the program. Mrs. Mabel Benedix, lecturer.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

"The Girl Without a Chance" Will Have It at Barre Opera House.

A enlightened public is undoubtedly the greatest protection against any public menace. There are many ways for the public to gain knowledge of existing conditions, but none so effective as the press and the stage. When it was discovered, some three years ago, that a gigantic trust for the traffic of young women and girls had been built up in this country, these two mediums combined to expose it and to-day the percentage of girls who fall victim to their snares has been very materially reduced. The subject is not yet sufficiently talked about. Every one should know the methods of these wolves of society. Every girl should be familiar with the bait they set their traps with. "The Girl Without a Chance," which appears at the opera house Friday, March 9, will show you many new methods which they employ to decoy unsuspecting girls into their nets. Every father and mother should see it. Every minister should advise them to, for it teaches a moral lesson equal to any sermon.—adv.

After the truck returned to the station, men watched the chimney for a short time.

RALLY FOR TEMPERANCE

Was Held at the Baptist Church Last Evening.

Young people's societies of the Baptist, Universalist and Methodist churches joined in a union temperance rally at the Baptist church last evening, a good-sized audience listening to the interesting program.

For the singing a choir was picked from the three churches and each of the societies was represented on the platform. Harry L. Kent of the Baptist society acted as chairman of the meeting and Messrs. Loren Allen and Hugh Carpenter represented the other churches. The committee in charge consisted of the Messrs. Olive Smith and Eva McDonald and Messrs. Earl M. Lewis and Harley Kidder. The program is as follows: Prayer by Rev. B. G. Lipsky of Hedding church; reading, Howard Geake; rally hymn; vocal solo, David Taglia; reading, Gordon Reardon; vocal solo, Merle Douglas; reading, Marion Anker; collection to go toward the no vote fund; vocal solo, James McNab; address on temperance, Prin. O. K. Hollister.

The address given by Mr. Hollister showed what is being accomplished throughout the union in the prohibition cause and what Congress at Washington has been achieving throughout the past year. More has been done by this body during the past 12 months than anyone would have thought possible a year ago, in putting laws in force which will have a tendency to place the nation on a prohibition basis. During last week Congress voted to prohibit the sale of liquor in the District of Columbia, which brought the climax after one of the hardest struggles in the history of the nation. Measures have been taken to prohibit the sale of liquor in the territories of the United States, such as the territory of Alaska and the Hawaiian islands; and it was at this point that the speaker stated his belief that by 1920 the entire nation would be under prohibition.

In outlining the territory where the greatest successes have been gained for prohibition, he said that it was almost always found to be where the women are allowed a voice in the government proceedings, these states being west of the Mississippi river; and to a certain extent these are the ones which will go a long way to decide the destinies of our country. He said that the women made those ends by going out and working for the point which they wished to accomplish, and it is his belief that if the women of Vermont ever are allowed to vote it will mean prohibition for the state in a very short time. In closing, the speaker stated the figures which he received from authorities concerning the arrests for drunkenness in Barre during the past three years, which are as follows: 1914, 147; 1915, 197; 1916, 331, and 280 from May 1, and of the arrests which have totaled 450 during the year, 409 are said to have been caused from liquor in some form.

The meeting closed with the benediction by Rev. B. J. Lehigh, pastor of the Baptist church.

TALK OF THE TOWN

Large assortment of spring coats at Abbott's. Plumber brand muslin underwear at Abbott's.

Among the Waterbury business visitors and shoppers in the city Saturday were Mrs. W. J. O'Neill, Miss Marguerite O'Neill, Miss Mary O'Neill and Miss Nellie O'Brien.

A Goddard seminary graduate of 1911 is referred to in the following item from the Bellows Falls Times: "Bernie Lee, formerly a third baseman for the Bellows Falls Twin State league team, was in town Tuesday. He has been tallying lumber in Bennington this winter and was on his way to his home in Irasburg. He has signed with the Baltimore International league team for the coming season."

Owing to the unavoidable absence of Rev. J. A. Lynch, rector of St. John's church in Northfield, who was expected to deliver the sermon in St. Monica's church Sunday evening, the services were in charge of Rev. Fr. McKenna. In the expectation that Fr. Lynch would arrive on a late train, the evening devotionals were deferred until 7:40 o'clock. Fr. McKenna delivered a sermon on "Many Are Called and Few Are Chosen."

CALLS OPEN SALOON

A GREAT MENACE

not the city shall have the open saloon for another year. For good or evil, it is a tremendous issue. A question often asked and never satisfactorily answered is: Why is it that so many Christian men and women, followers of Christ, who died for the salvation of souls, are doing so little to save souls from the evils of intemperance and drunkenness? So many say, "It is none of my business." Or others, "Am I my brother's keeper? Let others do it." And again, "Let the police do it, or leave it to the temperance men." It is, indeed, a difficult question, but how much harder is it to understand why there are so many professing Christians who not only refuse to help their fellow men in this matter, but go so far as to push them over the precipice of despair. Men who are often found inviting others to drink, who are applying for licenses and then selling that which makes drunkards and brings damnation to many souls. They are the men who do this evil business with the approval of the law and make money out of it.

"Some say that the first step is to reform the drunkard. I do not agree with this sentiment. It is a forlorn hope and there is seldom much prospect of success in attempted reforms of this sort. Formerly the prime idea in medical science was to cure disease. Now, the first thought of that science is to prevent disease and, therefore, to save the race by prevention. That is why science is handed together to-day on the principle that a ounce of prevention is worth the pound of cure. On that same principle I hold that to vote against the open saloon, to enforce prohibition by the abolition of the brewery and the still, is not to reform, but to save those who may fall into the clutches of the demon, alcohol.

"Contrary to the claim of bigots who seek to align the church with the opponents of prohibition, you will find that the Catholic church is first and foremost for the uplift of humanity. At confirmation every devout Catholic is enlisted under the banner of Christ and pledged to fight His enemies. Are we not to consider those who are promoting the liquor traffic as the real enemies of Him and His followers? St. Paul referred to 'those whose god is their belly and whose glory is in their shame.' Intemperance is very probably the leading enemy of Christ. Are we fighting that enemy as we should? Are we foremost in this good fight?

"It is to the credit of most of you that you have voted against the open saloon in Barre year after year. You have received credit for the victory from your fellow men, and while you were not opposing the traffic in the hope of being rewarded by the approbation of your fellow men, you deserve it worthily. What does it mean to vote against the open saloon? Two weeks ago I was asked to name a committee from the parish of St. Monica's to act with a 'no license' committee, but I was compelled to decline. It was not because there are not men in the parish who are opposed to the traffic. All of you are, at heart, and you vote accordingly, but you should go farther by using your influence and making known your stand among your fellow men. You should use your influence in a personal way. Women, who are the chief sufferers, find in the fight against liquor a field for their influence.

"There are well disposed men, hating intemperance, who aver that regulation is better than prohibition, because it is more effective. They are in error, in error especially with regard to local conditions. Only a short time ago professional men of Barre told me that conditions here in the city were vastly worse in 1916 than in the years of no license. What more conclusive evidence can we desire than the report of the chief of police, which refers to 331 arrests for intoxication. In January there were 15 arrests, in February 7, in March 8 and in April 12, all under no license. How many were there in May, the first month of the open saloon regime? The answer is 62. In June there were 28, in July 32, in August 35, in September 27, in October 46 and in December 29. Other offenses recorded in the chief's official report may be traced to intemperance. The figures are too revealing to need extended comment. Nor do they represent the sum-total of inebriety, for many intoxicated persons, while on their way to their homes, have been permitted to pursue their way, even though noticed by the police."

At this juncture Father McKenna replied to the allegation that the church is not opposed to the saloon by reading excerpts from a decree of the late Pope Leo in which the faithful are urged to remain away from places where liquor is sold. To frequent these places, especially on Saturday nights and on the Lord's day is "one way of profaning the law" and the decree considers it imperative to "utter words of condemnation against such practices," and to urge Catholics never to take part in the traffic or patronize saloons.

In closing, the priest said that he was averse to seeing women at the polls, but believed they should be allowed to have a voice on the local option issue, inasmuch as they are the ones who more often experience the most evil effects of inebriety. He spoke of the tidal wave of prohibition, which has made 23 states "bone dry," and lauded the forces that are trying to make America dry. Finally, he besought his parishioners to remember their solemn duty, while mindful of the countless evils wrought by the saloon, and vote against its retention.
